Drug.

RINGLEADER HEAVILY FINED

WASHINGTON TIMES BUREAU,
ALEXANDRIA, VA., OCT. 12.

Sarah Catlett, William Miller, Noah Green, John Quill, Samuel Dudley, Jerry Simms, Robert Bryant and John Grady were arrested by Chief Goods and Police men Nicholson and Knight last night charged with selling cocaine. The arrest was made as the result of information brought out in the corporation court at the trial of Howard Banks. In the police court this morning Sarah Catlett testified to having bought cocaine from the prisoner on 12. Several other witnesses testified to having used cocaine, but none of them bought it in this city, although some of them admitted having gone to Washington and purchased the drug.

Several witnesses testified that William Miller, alias Bear, had gone to Washington and purchased the drug for them. Justice Catton after hearing all the evidence fined Miller $50 and dismissed the rest.

Banks Murder Trial.

About 11 o'clock last night the jury in company with the witnesses and witnesses visited the saloon where the murder occurred, and the scene of the murder was crisscrossed for the benefit of the jury.

The jury was then returned to the courtroom, and were locked up all night.

Court opened at 10 o'clock this morning, when the hearing of witnesses was again commenced.

Mr. Carpenter, and refreshments were served by the committee assisted by the ladies of Grace Church.

He boarded a train for New York, but it was not thought his condition was critical.

There will be oysters enough for everybody and no charges will be made beyond the little expense of the ticket to the beach.

A corps of experienced chefs has already been selected and the Chesapeake has furnished an abundant supply of oysters. Everything awaits the coming of the crowd.

The beach attained such wide popularity among Washington people during the past summer there are many who will welcome the opportunity to repeat their visits under especially favorable circumstances.

WHITE SLAVE WOULD SELL MERELY HER MENTAL SELF

MISS ELIZABETH MAGIE,
Who Is Beautiful, Clever, Literary, and for Sale.

Miss Magie's Advertisement Grieves Relatives But Attracts Suitors.

Miss Elizabeth Magie, the Washington girl who startled the country a few days ago by offering herself for sale to the highest bidder, has thrown a bomb into the camp of her friends both here and in New York and Chicago. Her brother, as related in yesterday's Times, attributes her remarkable advertisement to eccentricity and a possible desire to attract attention to certain books she has written.

Which ever it is, there is no question that Miss Magie has launched herself into the limelight of publicity with the logical ideas of developing the best that is in her.

Miss Magie, while living here, was a member of the dramatic school conducted in the Belasco Theater by Robert Hickman. She played in several of his productions, but made her most successful appearance in Mr. Hickman's presentation of "Hedda Gabler" last year. Whether she has been reading Ibsen in the still hours of the night and has imbibed some peculiarly psychological ideas nobody is prepared to say, but she has at least succeeded in making herself heard.

Offers of Marriage.

It is said Miss Magie has written many short stories that are particularly clever, and that her description of her own abilities has not been exaggerated. In a dispatch from Chicago today Miss Magie asserts that she has received many offers of marriage both in person and through the mail, but that she has not investigated any of the sources. She declares herself to be particularly in favor of an offer from a man in Wisconsin, who has expressed his willingness to take her into his own family.

In speaking of his former pupil today, Mr. Hickman said:

"Yes, I know Miss Magie. She is one of the cleverest girls I ever knew. You never know what she is going to do next. She has invented a wonderful puzzle. I did not know she was in Chicago."

Just what the result of Miss Magie's remarkable performance will be is difficult to foresee but Chicago is upsetting itself over the discovery of this new "genius."

A Russian nobleman, who lives in the Windy City, has written to her asking her to open a correspondence with him, and more than 100 callers sent their cards yesterday to this rather unusual young woman. She, however, refused to see the majority of them, although a few were admitted to her room.

Dozens of telegrams have been received by Miss Magie from relatives and friends who deplore the publicity she has brought to herself and who offer solutions of the problem. They have so worked on the young woman that she has been compelled to explain more fully her attitude and disposition, as far as possible, what she believes to be the wrong impression her announcement has created.

"What I really mean," she said today, "was that I would sell the labor of my hands and brain to secure for myself logical ideas to develop the best that is in me. The ambiguity of my expressions has led to grief on the part of my friends and myself."

"Of course, I am a white slave, but I am not on the block physically. As the matter stands, there is not much harm done, since those who know me will comprehend and those who do not know me will understand when they read my explanation."

DIVORCE HILL FOR WEST

Author's Son Defendant in Suit and Banker's Wife
Co-Respondent.

DENVER, Oct. 12.—Mrs. Rose A. Hill has filed a suit for divorce on statutory grounds against Frank William Hill, and has sued Mrs. Anna Bent, wife of E. J. Bent, a banker, of O'Quay, who is named as co-respondent, for $50,000 damages.

Both here and in O'Quay this is the astounding crash of a long-whispered scandal. The Hills and the Bents are of high social consequence.

Hill is the son of Alice Polk Hill, a well-known writer and clubwoman. His wife, to whom he was married in 1891, was a Miss Atmore, daughter of one of Denver's pioneer merchants. Mrs. Bent was a Miss Burroughs, of Colorado Springs, before she married the cashier of the Miners and Merchants' Bank in this section of the State.

Mrs. Bent found O'Quay dull and sleepy. She came here to place her daughter in a fashionable school, saying at the time to her husband:

"I hate this little hole of a town and won't come back if I can help it."

At the same time Hill said to Mrs. Hill: "Rose, I am not going to live with you I love another woman. I shall divorce you and marry her. But what is Mrs. Hill who is doing the divorcing and she has asked for an injunction restraining Hill from disposing of his property."

"I hate this little hole of a town and won't come back if I can help it."
